Utility: -

The outcome of Continuous Medical Education (CME) on the clinical utility of Rasayan (rejuvenating) drugs was positive in terms of enhancing healthcare professionals' understanding and practical application. CME program helped clinicians stay informed about the potential benefits, evidence-based applications, and safety profiles of Rasayan drugs, which are traditionally used in Ayurveda to promote longevity, health, and vitality.

Key outcomes include:

1. Improved Knowledge: Healthcare providers were gained a deeper understanding of Rasayan drugs, their active components, and how they may support rejuvenation, immunity, and overall wellness. Along with this they also gained profound knowledge about the current scenario of Ayurved in USA.
2. Evidence-Based Integration: CME facilitated the integration of traditional practices with modern medicine, based on current research and clinical trials supporting the efficacy of Rasayan drugs.
3. Better Patient Care: Clinicians became better equipped to recommend these drugs as part of holistic treatment plans, especially for chronic conditions, aging, and stress-related disorders.
4. Enhanced Safety: As physicians become more knowledgeable, they can make safer, more informed decisions when prescribing Rasayan drugs, minimizing risks of interactions with conventional treatments.

Overall, CME fostered a more informed approach, encouraging the appropriate and safe clinical use of Rasayan drugs.
